The rise of political disagreement in post-political cities refers to the fact that consensual techno-managerial governance represents the economic power façade, by which the space of deliberative democracy is narrowed to address terms like urban growth, sustainable development and urban ecology for in rational enumerative way and for the sake of financial power interests. Post-political spatial planning in England: a crisis of consensus. Available at: http://onlinelibrary.wiley.com/doi/10.1111/j.1475-5661.2011.00468.x/abstract (Accessed: 15 January 2017). Politics & the Political -- Erik Swyngedouw (2012) YouTube video, added by kentoncard [Online]. POLITICAL DECISION-MAKING IN A CRISIS 9 Political decision-making in a crisis In March 2010, a British Academy Forum looked at how political decisions are taken during a crisis (whether ‘foot and mouth’ or 7/7). From fuel protests, foot and mouth outbreaks and floods, to had an interesting impact... The scale of the shock of these events led to ‘long post-mortems’ which concluded that the system was broken, in particular the emergency committee of ministers, which was large and unwieldy. In the US the outgoing Bush of crises discussed had seen confusion between Departments and the Administration arranged for a crisis rehearsal for the Obama team.